Accountant accused of embezzling ASI funds

Public Safety files complaint against trusted employee

By Lisa M. Hansen
Daily Assistant Managing Editor

A former ASI accountant has been accused of allegedly embezzling large amounts of student money, according to Cal Poly Public Safety officials.

Director of Public Safety Joe Risser said Susan K. Pierce, an administrative accountant of 25 years, is the subject of a complaint filed last Friday by Public Safety at the District Attorney's Office.

Pierce abruptly resigned after she was confronted in May about the alleged manipulation of a small amount of funds, said Cal Poly Police Chief Tom Mitchell. He said the ASI accounting staff discovered the alleged embezzlement after reviewing accounts handled by Pierce.

An audit and investigation into the matter is ongoing, according to Public Safety Investigator Mike Kennedy. He said the investigation has progressed to reveal that a "sizeable amount" of ASI money has been misdirected over a period of years.

ASI officials declined to comment.

"Because of the nature of the situation, all questions are being directed to (Public Safety)," said Polly Harrigan, ASI executive director.

Mitchell said ASI has chosen this route of action because "it puts ASI in a position of liability if anything printed is inaccurate or unproven."

"A lot of people felt very close to this individual. There are a lot of personal feelings intertwined

Gunman violently kills rising Mexican official

By John Rice
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — A young man assassinated a key official of Mexico's ruling party Wednesday, rocking a country already buffeted by a turbulent year of violence and rebellion.

Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu, secretary-general of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was shot in the neck after getting into his car following a breakfast at a downtown hotel. Shattered glass from the passenger side window was strewn on the busy Paseo de la Reforma boulevard.

A bank guard tackled the gunman and turned him over to police. Officials did not immediately identify the dark-haired man or give a motive for what President Carlos Salinas de Gortari described as "a hideous crime."

"This is a day of mourning for PRIistas. This is a day of mourning for all Mexicans," said President-elect Ernesto Zedillo.

The killing shocked officials

As the National Weather Service on Wednesday issued a flash flood warning for the areas scorched by the summer's blaze, Cal Poly students were busy dodging puddles and lightning on their way to class.

"I didn't expect the rain, but it's pretty cool," said social science senior Rick Gonzalez. "I have to figure out where all the halls go here to stay out of the rain."

The weather service's Santa Maria office issued a flash flood warning Wednesday morning for the mountains of northern San Luis Obispo County.

The weather service's radar showed heavy showers and thunderstorms pounding the area that just months ago was burned by the Highway 41 fire north of Cuesta Grade.

Rain was reported to be falling at rates up to one inch per hour, which prompted the flood warning. The warning stayed in effect until noon Wednesday.

Of particular concern in the northern areas of the county were Tassajara Canyon and the areas around Atascadero Creek and upper Morro Creek.

Cuesta Grade was closed for a few hours Wednesday afternoon due to a five car collision but was reopened shortly after 5 p.m., according to a California Highway Patrol spokesperson. There were no reports of injuries or fatalities at press time.

Haitian lawmakers return home

By David Beard
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Haitian lawmakers cast aside years of fear to reunite Wednesday and try to build a democratic society.

Ten lawmakers had ended their exile just hours earlier, flown in on a U.S.-chartered jetliner and guarded by the American military force at the seaside Legislative Palace.

At least 3,000 jubilant well-wishers cheered as vans carried the legislators toward the white colonnaded parliament building, which was sealed off by concertina wire and 600 American soldiers armed with assault weapons.

The politicians met Wednesday in hopes of forging an agreement on amnesty for the military leaders who ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in a bloody coup three years ago. Amnesty for the coup and the human rights abuses that followed was part of a Sept. 18 deal between the ruling junta and an American delegation led by former President Jimmy Carter.

U.S. officials have strongly backed an amnesty to defuse violence by desperate Haitian soldiers.

Several of the returning lawmakers hugged friends who greeted them as they stepped off a green-and-white Boeing 737 jetliner from Miami.

"We don't want (army chief Raoul) Cedras! It is Aristide we want!" the crowd sang.

"We are happy about the amnesty bill ... These guys can finally leave and we can go on," said one well-wisher, Nene Dorcilus.

Before they left for Haiti on Wednesday, several of the returning lawmakers said they opposed granting the military rulers amnesty, but would go along with it in order to restore the elected government to Haiti.

Human rights groups have blamed soldiers and army-backed gunmen for the deaths of about 3,000 people since the 1991 coup.

"Personally I think amnesty is an immoral act, but one of the conditions of the return of President Aristide is the amnesty. So we're going to do the sacrifice," said Fritz Robert St. Paul, an exiled deputy, before departing from Miami International Airport.

Fifty-four of 79 deputies and 11 of 17 senators attended the parliament session, giving both houses a quorum for the first time since fisticuffs broke up a session in January. U.S. Ambassador William Swing was among the foreign diplomats in attendance.

Lawmakers disagreed on how broad an amnesty to grant. Several pro-Aristide legislators supported a political amnesty, but not exoneration for bloodshed.

still recovering from the March 23 assassination of PRI Mexican presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio, shot at a Tijuana campaign rally. Zedillo won the Aug. 21 presidential election and takes power Dec. 1.

Both Zedillo and Salinas were at the Hospital Espanol where Ruiz Massieu, his shirt ripped open and soaked with blood, was rushed after the shooting. Doctors said Ruiz Massieu had no pulse on arrival and was pronounced dead at 10:30 a.m., an hour after the shooting.

Deputy Attorney General Mario Ruiz Massieu, the slain man's brother, announced the death. He is in charge of prosecuting drug traffickers for the federal attorney general's office, which has the suspected gunman in custody.

Drug traffickers are accused of murdering Roman Catholic Cardinal Juan Jesus Posadas Ocampo in a case of mistaken identity at the Guadalajara airport in May 1993.

The assassination of Ruiz Massieu, No. 2 in the ruling party, jolted Mexico just as the country appeared to be settling down after months of violence and political turbulence.

Despite the Mayan Indian movement uprising in southern Mexico that began New Year's Day, the PRI, which has governed Mexico since 1929, was able to gain 50 percent of the vote in the national election. Widely feared post-electoral violence failed to materialize.

THE NORTH FORTY

Straight talk about veal / Keri Greenberg

Veal calf raising is an emotional issue, fueled by a combination of misinformation and actual activity to which humans have a hard time relating.

I'll call it a sensitivity issue. Veal ranchers are faced daily with animal rights activists repeating "information," like the following anecdote, about how veal calves are raised.

Recently, I heard someone claim that veal calves, at one time, were cut off at the legs so they could not move around and would fatten quickly.

Logic alone proves the absurdity of this idea. Cutting off the legs of calves would serve as an infection center, and antibiotics which might control such infection are regulated heavily. In addition, such trauma would cause massive depression in any animal and weight loss, rather than gain, would be the result.

The controversy over and lack of demand for veal meat makes veal calf raising such a problem that Cal Poly does not produce veal.

Much of the protest revolves around the housing and diet of the calves. So to dispel any further fabrications, I cite the following facts, released by Carolyn Stull, Ph.D. of University of California, Davis:

- Veal is the meat obtained from immature cattle carcasses (usually less than 20 weeks old).
- Calves are usually transported to the veal producer within the first week of life.
- There, they are separated and placed in individual stalls or hutches to prevent the spread of disease and infection.
- Because of a strong sucking instinct which may lead a calf to suck on pen mates and pass infection, group housing is usually impossible for the first eight to 10 weeks of age.
- The stalls usually do not allow the calf to turn around to prevent waste contamination of food and living areas. They do, however, have room to stand up, lie down, move forward and back in the stall.
- Oak-slotted flooring allows manure to fall through the slats to the floor below, where it is cleaned away regularly.
- Implanted hormones to promote growth are not legal in veal calf production.
- Antibiotics are used in veal production to control disease and its spread.
- Calves are not raised in the dark.

If calves aren't raised in the dark, then why is the meat so pale? Tender veal meat is highly desirable in the sales and consumption of veal. An old wives' tale claims that whiter meat is more tender. Therefore, consumers demand paler meat.

To meet those demands while maintaining the health of calves, producers feed a highly nutritious milk replacement formula consisting of dried whey, dried skim milk, vitamins and minerals. While calves are not clinically anemic, iron is supplemented in feed during early production phases and limited during the latter part of production. Iron affects the redness of blood and muscle.

Sufficient iron is required for proper nutrition and health of the calf, and clinical anemia results in the loss of appetite and growth. According to the Veal Committee of the National Livestock Board, the best evidence that veal calves are healthy is their average growth rate of 2.5 pounds per day and low mortality rate.

And conditions continue to change in the veal production business. Modern stalls reach the shoulder of calves allowing limited interaction with neighbors. Guidelines supplied by the American Veterinary Medical Association recommend well-lit, well-insulated and well-ventilated barns to promote the health of calves.

The well-being of the rancher's business does, after all, rely on the well-being of his or her animals.

Greetings from

WARREN J. BAKER

President, California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo

The faculty, staff and administration are delighted that each of you chose to come to Cal Poly.

And we recognize that by making this choice, you and your parents have placed your trust in us, and this creates for the university a solemn obligation:

If you will work diligently and with an open mind, the university guarantees it will provide you with a superior education.

This is a serious pledge, one we do not take lightly.

And to keep this obligation to you, the university must constantly evaluate what it is doing. Otherwise, there is the possibility that Cal Poly will fall backward into sterile complacency or, what is worse, obsolescence.

And right now we're asking ourselves some difficult questions regarding two issues at the very core of the university: our curriculum and our academic calendar.

In the past, the curriculum in academic and professional disciplines has been reviewed approximately every two years — primarily by the faculty housed in each department. They made sure courses were current in terms of new scholarship and changes in the social and economic environment.

We think it's time now for the faculty to enlarge the scope of its review and for all departments and colleges to become involved in a comprehensive evaluation.

Consequently, the university has designated 1994-95 as "The Year of the Curriculum."

If changes in curriculum occur, we know it is absolutely essential that we accommodate students working under requirements listed in earlier catalogues so they graduate without any loss of time or effort.

To speed up the time to graduation for our students, we should take a look at course sequencing as well as possible redundancy when the same material is covered in two or more required classes.

Then there is the issue of electives: where we can, we should get away from the oxymoron of "required electives" and give students more true choices so they can explore areas outside their majors.

A campus-wide task force on curriculum recently made its report available to the faculty, calling for a "learning-centered" program of study. This means the needs of students will be defining elements in curriculum decisions.

The report further stipulates that the campus should employ something called "visionary pragmatism" in making this review. This unusual phrase, not surprisingly, seems to echo the linked ideas and intentions found in the phrase "polytechnic university."

While the curriculum review is beginning, the university is continuing its considerations of the academic calendar.

I expect to receive a recommendation about the calendar from the Academic Senate in the near future, followed by the results of a faculty referendum. This information will be studied along with the views of students and staff.

Once again, in reviewing the calendar, student needs are the primary driving considerations. And we will make absolutely sure, should we change systems, that students on campus during the transition are not adversely affected.

Looking around us, we see that fully 93 percent of public, comprehensive universities like Cal Poly are on the semester system, according to the American Council on Education.

Cal Poly certainly doesn't need to follow the crowd, but is it possible that this large majority of sister universities has discovered something that we haven't?

Obviously, the administrative efficiency of semesters over quarters is clear: one fewer registration and final grading period; less difficulty for students transferring to or from most other colleges and universities — the majority of which are on semesters — and better articulation with semester system campuses elsewhere.

Some argue that the greater depth of study that may be achieved in semesters sacrifices the fuller coverage of a discipline that is provided by the quarter system. I know in a few departments that this is an urgent concern.

But for many programs on campus, a change to semesters might encourage faculty to create more coherence in courses of study as, for example, they adjust elements taught over three quarters to fit into only two terms.

With curriculum and calendar changes under review, this is going to be an interesting, even exciting, year for the university.

I hope to stay in closer touch with you this year through other messages in Mustang Daily. And in the meantime, I encourage you to contact student leaders, write letters to the editor, or even send notes to my office to let me know what you are thinking regarding these large issues facing your university.

Greetings from

ERICA BROWN

President, Associated Students, Inc., Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo

Welcome to the Cal Poly 1994-95 Academic Year!

While you were gone this summer, the university hired a new vice president for Student Affairs, Dr. Juan Gonzalez. Dr. Gonzalez is our primary liaison between the students and the university Administration. He is eager to work closely with us this year in an effort to build a cohesive and productive student affairs division.

The Associated Students, Inc. (ASI) has been very busy this past summer representing the student's concerns as addressed last spring.

I am pleased to report that we hosted the Second Annual Council of Presidents Forum. Associated Students presidents from all over the California State University system met for a two-day period to discuss critical issues which affect students, including the state budget and communication links/opportunities with the Chancellor's Office.

Another key push this summer was the continued negotiations for a night-time parking permit. This permit would allow the students to purchase a parking permit effective from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m., thus allowing those students who routinely choose to use alternative transportation during the day to drive to evening classes. The university is working closely with us in our attempt to gain campus and CSU-wide approval for this new concept.

We are confident that the ASI will make great progress this year on the students' request for new teacher evaluations. Throughout the summer, we collected final evaluations from universities similar to ours in an effort to open further negotiations with the faculty and administration.

In addition, we initiated discussions in providing advanced copies of classroom syllabi in order to allow student the opportunity to closely assess and monitor the class work schedule prior to enrolling in the class. We hope to have this program up and running by the time you need to enroll for your winter quarter classes.

If you are wondering where the ASI is headed, you are not alone. One of our key priorities this academic year will be to initiate a two-year comprehensive strategic plan. We intend to look at all our possibilities, potentials and future goals in order to meet your needs here at Cal Poly.

ASI intends to continue to support popular student programs such as the Chumash Challenge Ropes Course, Intramurals, Sports Clubs, Open House and the Student Neighborhood Assistance Program (SNAP). We will be involved with supporting the new Multicultural Center and the ethnic student leadership commissions through support and co-sponsorship.

As your student voice, we will continue to reach out to you, the students, through college councils, clubs and media. In addition, please feel free to personally call on me or any of your other ASI representatives. The student executive offices are located in Room 217A, Julian A. McPhee University Union. Come see us, or give us a call at 756-1291. ASI representatives will be present at club meetings, residence halls and open forums to discuss issues in person. We need your input; it is important to us!

Once again, welcome back to Cal Poly!

True Math.

You don't have to be a calc professor to see you could save more with AT&T True USASM Savings.

It's true—if you live off campus, AT&T True USASM Savings really could save you more. Just look up your average monthly long distance bill on the chart, and see for yourself.

Now here's why. AT&T's and MCI's basic rates start off about the same. Then, with Friends and Family MCI advertises 20% off your long distance calls, but—here's the catch—only if they're to MCI users who are also on your calling circle list. Truth is, two-thirds of most Friends and Family members' calls aren't to those selected people. So the average discount you end up seeing on your bill is only 6%.* Not the 20% you expected.

AT&T True USASM Savings is a whole lot simpler. Spend $25 a month, and we'll subtract 20% off your bill. The full 20%—not some conditional percentage. Spend $75 a month, and we'll take 30% off. You can save on calls to anyone, anytime, anywhere in the good old U.S. of A. No restrictions. No calling circles. No disappointments.

So take a good look at the chart (you can ask a math major for help) and check out who's saving you what. We think you'll find you could be saving a lot more with AT&T. Call 1-800-TRUE-USA.SM And get all the savings you expect.

Arianna Huffington's religious beliefs come under scrutiny

By Steve Farr
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO — The religious beliefs of Arianna Stasinopoulos Huffington are coming under scrutiny as her husband Michael has drawn even with Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein in the polls.

The author and talk show host has been the subject of press reports noting her close ties to a religious group labeled a "destructive" cult by a monitoring organization.

Michael Huffington, a Republican congressman from Santa Barbara, has spent more than $10 million to turn his long-shot campaign against Feinstein into an even draw in the latest polls.

Mrs. Huffington, 43, has been active in her husband's campaign, making appearances at debates and fund-raisers.

She was for several years a minister of the Church of the Movement of Spiritual Inner Awareness, a Los Angeles group headed by founder John-Roger Hinkins, who has legally changed his name to John-Roger.

John-Roger, 60, claims he formed MSIA 30 years ago after awakening from a coma reborn as one of Jesus Christ's 12 apostles. John-Roger has denied allegations by former members that he lived lavishly using tax-exempt funds, psychologically controlled followers and seduced teenage boys.

The Chicago-based Cult Awareness Network has classified the group as "destructive," its most dangerous category.

Huffington spokeswoman Jennifer Grossman said Mrs. Huffington left MSIA in 1986 after marrying Michael, an Episcopalian. A Greek immigrant and lifelong member of the Greek Orthodox Church, Mrs. Huffington attends the Greek Orthodox Church of Santa Barbara, Grossman said Tuesday.

"She's not involved with (MSIA)," Grossman said.

Mrs. Huffington also has considered herself a born-again Christian since 1987, Grossman said. That has earned her husband support from conservatives like the Rev. Lou Sheldon of the Anaheim-based Traditional Values Coalition.

"If you're born-again you can be Catholic, you can be Greek Orthodox, you can be any denomination," Grossman said. "It's a spiritual distinction."

Although Mrs. Huffington's left MSIA, pronounced "messiah," she remains friends with John-Roger, Grossman said.

"She's not going to repudiate him," Grossman said. "I wouldn't characterize him as a close friend."

Mrs. Huffington allegedly met John-Roger in 1974 and became a minister in his group in 1978. Grossman said there was no formal ordination and all members were loosely considered "ministers."

But a review of public records and interviews by the Orange County Register found otherwise. Eight former ministers told the paper that MSIA ministers were required to accept John-Roger as their personal savior, placing him as a spiritual figure above Christ and below only God.

Although Grossman said Mrs. Huffington has had little contact with the movement since 1986, records filed with the California Registry of Charitable Trusts show that from 1990 to 1992 she gave $35,000 to an organization formed by John-Roger, the Foundation for the Study of Individual and World Peace.

Man falsely convicted of rape cleared 10 years later

By Mary Neubauer
Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — You were convicted for a kidnapping, rape and robbery you did not commit. At 26, you were sentenced to life in prison. After 10 years behind bars, new scientific evidence clears you.

Now what?
"I think the No. 1 thing I'd like to do is go to church Sunday because I truly believe I was blessed," Frederick Daye said Wednesday as he sat on the porch of his mother's central Des Moines home.

Daye was released from the Solano state prison near Sacramento, Calif., on Tuesday. Prosecutors said DNA testing, which was in its infancy when Daye was tried, proved that he was not the source of semen found on the victim's clothing.

Daye was arrested Jan. 25, 1984, 15 days after the rape victim reported the attack. The woman identified Daye as one of her assailants, police said, and officers arrested Daye and Charles Pringle of San Diego. They were convicted in separate trials.

Daye said that when a guard at the prison told him he had a telephone call Monday, he thought something bad had happened in his family. Instead, he got the news that he had been cleared.

"I just started screaming," he said.

Two days later, he's back in Des Moines, fielding telephone calls from media across the country and greeting family and friends. His hair and beard are starting to grey, but his slim build belies his age.

Gwen Chancellor, his sweetheart from 15 years ago in Des Moines, stopped by Wednesday.

"It's Ricky! It's Ricky!" she yelled as they hugged.

"I've been through a little ordeal, you know what I'm saying," he tells her. "But I can shake it."

"I've been through a little ordeal, you know what I'm saying. But I can shake it."

Frederick Daye
Wrongly accused of rape

Daye admits he has not led a perfect life. He left Des Moines in 1975 when he joined the Marines but returned home in 1977 after being dishonorably discharged. He doesn't say why. From there, he went to Minneapolis, where he was convicted of robbery and sentenced to 10 years in a St. Cloud, Minn., prison. After "some time" there, he learned how to cut hair, and moved to San Diego when he was released, where he became a barber.

On Jan. 10, 1984, a woman told police two men forced her into her car, made her drive to a residential area, robbed her, raped her and then drove off in her car, leaving her behind.

Daye was arrested two weeks later during a routine traffic stop when a police officer noticed that he fit the description of one of the two assailants. The woman had told police one of the men had a gold cap on his left front tooth. Daye has a silver cap on his right front tooth, but the woman picked him out of a police lineup.

Carmela Simoncini, a lawyer with Appellate Defenders Inc., in San Diego, received a telephone call in 1990 from another lawyer who told her that Pringle had just found out the Daye was in prison.

Pringle had written to his lawyer, saying that another man, not Daye, was involved in the crimes. The other lawyers wanted to know if Simoncini could help Daye.

She took the case, found the evidence from Pringle's trial — including the victim's clothing — and asked the California Superior Court to review it. The court appointed another attorney, who filed Daye's documents in Pringle's files and did nothing further.

Two years later, Simoncini found out what the other lawyer had done and got herself appointed as Daye's lawyer. Finally, the California Court of Appeals agreed to give Simoncini the money she needed to conduct DNA testing on the victim's clothing. In April, those results proved that Daye was not the source of semen found on the clothes.

On Monday, she got the order from the district attorney's office saying Daye should be released.

"I'm convinced that he's not an isolated case," she said. "I'm convinced there are other people who have been convicted because of erroneous information."

Fay in rehab for butane-sniffing habit

By James Hannah
Associated Press

KETTERING, Ohio — Michael Fay, the teen-ager flogged in Singapore for vandalizing cars, has gone into drug rehab for treatment of a butane-sniffing habit, his stepmother said Wednesday.

Jan Fay said her 19-year-old stepson was admitted to the Hazelden clinic in Minnesota several weeks ago after she and his father, George Fay, learned he had been inhaling the gas from pressurized cans to get high.

Butane is used in cigarette lighters.

Fay told (his stepmother) he was inhaling butane because it made him forget what happened in Singapore. "But you can't blame Singapore for everything," she said.

Fay told her he was inhaling butane because it made him forget what happened in Singapore.

"But you can't blame Singapore for everything," she said. "Michael knows that now. He knows that he has to take responsibility for his actions."

Fay received four lashes with a rattan cane and spent 83 days in a Singapore prison after being accused of spray-painting cars. Fay denied the allegation and said police coerced a false confession from him.

Fay was released from prison and returned to his father's home June 22.

On Sept. 2, Fay was treated at a hospital after his hands and face were burned. Mrs. Fay said he told her he and some friends had been working on a car when someone struck a match and there was a flash.

A few days later she found about a dozen cans of butane in his room, she said. She and her husband confronted him.

"Finally, it all came out," Ms. Fay said.

She said he admitted he had inhaled butane in Singapore, and was sniffing butane when he was burned Sept. 2. He agreed to get treatment.

Police crack down on news leaks in Simpson case

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Police Chief Willie Williams on Wednesday defended the role of his homicide investigators in the O.J. Simpson double-murder case, and said he believed the right person was in custody.

"Right now, we feel that the only person who should be charged with these homicides is Mr. Simpson," Williams said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

"If something comes in that leads us in another direction, we'll follow that and see where it goes," he added.

Williams also said the Police Department wasn't the source of major leaks to the media, adding, "a lot of the leaks are really fantasies that are made up."

Last week, Superior Court Judge Lance A. Ito said he was outraged by an "erroneous" KNBC-TV report on bloody socks found at Simpson's Brentwood estate and he threatened to pull the plug on TV coverage of the trial.

KNBC reported that DNA tests showed blood on a sock found in Simpson's bedroom matched the blood of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson. Simpson is on trial for the murders of Ms. Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Reporter Tracie Savage backed away from her report late Tuesday.

"The sources we used for this report had knowledge of the investigation and had, on several previous occasions, provided accurate and reliable information to KNBC," she said.

"Now, for the first time, some of them are changing portions of their stories. The real truth may only come out in court."

Meantime, Williams said his department was trying to track the source of news leaks.

"We have been conducting an internal investigation to determine where leaks are coming from. I cannot right now say it's just one person or two people or three people," Williams said.

"But what you have to remember, if you're talking to an officer in a patrol car (or) you're talking to a non-sworn officer at a dinner table or outside on the street, and they tell you something, they infer something, that is not coming from a credible source; that's not coming from the office of the chief ... and that should not be considered to be a leak but little more than a rumor."

But the Police Department's internal investigation wasn't enough for Simpson lawyer Robert Shapiro.

Shapiro told Superior Court Judge Lance Ito on Wednesday that a state attorney general's investigation was warranted to determine "where the source of the contamination is coming from."

Williams noted an inaccurate TV report that a bloody ski mask was found at the scene of the June 12 slayings of Brown and Ms. Simpson.

"We knew inside the organization that no such bloody ski mask existed and clearly, whatever media put that information out first knew that their source wasn't reliable," Williams said.

Williams also said allegations of sloppiness by his department come from a defense team hired to raise such issues and does not mean evidence was compromised.

"I think that one of the real tragedies of this whole incident is the fact that, very unfairly, many persons have decided to try to target my department," Williams said. "The organization as a whole has been attacked and I think a lot of it has been really to divert the public, the people who will sit on that jury."

INHERITANCE

ments and constant signals from family members that Marianne would not do, Morton Smith said.

"Not everything goes with Joan Irvine Smith, you have to maintain a certain amount of decorum around her," said best man Jeff Fink, who works in the sports book of a Las Vegas casino.

"Marianne just didn't maintain that decorum. She was kind of herself. ... She's very outspoken. She's a nice girl and everything, but she's not what Mrs. Smith was looking for for her son."

When Morton proposed marriage last year, the couple said, word came that Morton was not welcome in his mother's Emerald Bay house, and the locks were changed.

His things from the farm in Middleburg were packed up and sent to California. And finally, Mom offered the ultimatum: "She said, 'If you pick her, you're out of the family,'" Morton Smith recalled.

"It was kind of like Gadhafi drawing the line of death. Then I'd cross the line and she'd draw a new one in the sand," he said. "It's pretty scary to have Joan mad at you. Everyone was scared but me."

"I'm an Irvine, I can take it," he said. "I don't have anything 'financial' to show for it, but breeding goes a long way."

Marianne said she didn't care about the inheritance.

"Mrs. Smith is brilliant — I just wish she could be more of a mom to him. I think sometimes she tries to control people. She can't control me because I can't be bought. I won't be."

"I do not want any bit of their inheritance, I have my own life," she said. "To deny your son — I can't think of anything more tragic than that."

The Phantom

Lurks

A rising opera singer is the object of jealousy while the Phantom lurks in the shadows stopping at nothing – even murder – to see this singer succeed.

The perils of this rising young opera singer can be seen in a new production of “The Phantom of the Opera,” playing at the Great American Melodrama through November.

“The Phantom of the Opera” plays with the “1960s Flashback Revue,” showcasing the music and dress of the sixties. It’s a creative combination that proved to be very entertaining.

“The Phantom of the Opera” was done as a play, not as an opera or musical. It did have singing, including some pieces from the opera, but it was primarily dialogue which made the plot easier to understand.

For those “unfamiliar with “The Phantom of the Opera,” it is set in Paris in 1881. A young chorus singer’s rapid improvement in voice has the current star of the opera very jealous.

The Beat Farmers play Covany

By Valeska Bailey
Daily Staff Writer

Get ready for some flop-house rock with San Diego's beer-drinking Beat Farmers when they come to Covany Brewing Company Saturday night.

The Beat Farmers came together 11 years ago as beer-drinking buddies, and since then, they have released six L.P.'s through the world-renown MCA distribution.

The albums that have been powered out to the public are "Tales of the New West," "Glad and Greasy," "VanGo," "Pursuit of Happiness" and performed live, "Loud and Plowed."

The band's newest album is called "Viking Lullabys." The new set is a mix of stirring, rootsy, pop-savvy new originals by singers/guitarists Jerry Raney and Joey Harris, as well as an array of drinking songs by Country Dick Montana.

The Beat Farmers said they consider their music a mixture of rock-country blues and flat-out rock'n'roll. They feel their music is written and played for pure entertainment, according to Harris.

"Our music is real good," Harris said. "It's almost like we have three bands in one, with Jerry's 'Yardbirds' sounding tunes, my folk base sound and Country Dick's wild country, dirty nasty, wild stuff."

This will not be the first time The Beat Farmers have been to the San Luis Obispo area and the band said they are looking forward to coming back.

Harris said they have played a few times at Loco Ranchero and at SLO Brewing Company.

The Beat Farmers plan to play tunes from various older albums and from their new "Viking Lullabys" album.

"We have so much material, that we like to throw a little bit of everything in," Harris said.

"It will be a pretty wild show," Country Dick Montana said in his deep, scruffy voice.

The Beat Farmers have been featured on shows such as Entertainment Tonight and David Letterman. They have also toured Europe five times, performing in countries such as Scandinavia and Germany.

"It's fun," Harris said. "The crowds are great in Europe. People show up just because we are an American band. The crowd goes nuts when Country Dick throws beer everywhere."

The Beat Farmers will play at Covany Brewing Company Saturday, Oct. 1. Tickets can be purchased at Boo Boo Records and Big Music for $8 and at the door for $10. The show begins at 9 p.m.

Solar Music Festival reveals alternative energy sources

By Maxine Gisinger
Daily Staff Writer

Sun worshipers from around the Central Coast will gather together this Sunday for a day filled with music, games and speakers focusing on the alternative energy source of solar power.

The Solar Music Festival is designed to entertain and educate the public about solar energy, while benefiting Mothers for Peace and the Eradicate Toxic Contaminants Coalition (E.T.C.C.).

Part of the money raised will help support the nonprofit E.T.C.C. in their fight against what they say is the contamination of Morro Bay from the nearby power plant.

Mothers for Peace, another local nonprofit organization, focuses its cause on fighting the existence of the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant. But the group works on other projects as well.

Last year Mothers for Peace worked on alternate energy home tours within the San Luis Obispo County, said member June Von Ruden.

Kathy DePeri, another member of Mothers for Peace and one of the coordinators of the music festival, said the idea for a solar celebration started last year.

DePeri and others wanted to retain the positive beliefs about other energy sources people have begun learning about.

"What better way to get the message out (about solar power) then hearing music and speakers spreading the good word?" DePeri said. She added she hopes to see a turnout of about 400 people.

The main attraction at the festival, DePeri said, will be a semi-truck named Cyrus, whose 40-foot trailer is covered in solar paneling. The name Cyrus means sun in Farsi, a language from Iran.

The truck, which is owned by Greenpeace, travels across the nation in an effort to publicize solar power. Their most recent efforts produced an environmental compact disc with artists such as U2.

The truck will help KCBX, a local radio station, broadcast with solar energy. On Sunday, Cyrus will give power to the festival, act as the backdrop for the stage and also function as an exhibit with solar displays for public viewing within the trailer.

Ceremonies will open with a blessing given by Chumash elder Pilulaw Khus. This will be coupled with music from the Global Peace Walk Orchestra.

Other speakers at the event include Michelle Becker from Mother's for Peace, Kelly Quirk of Greenpeace and Phil Klasky who will discuss the Ward Valley radioactive dump issue and relate it to issues involving Diablo Canyon.

Music will be provided by the bands Up In the Air and Love Jene.

The organizers of the event said they will also build a separate stage for children. Kids will be entertained with storytelling, puppet-shows and games.

Food from the Burrito Wagon and beverages will be sold at the park, but organizers said visitors are encouraged to make a day of the festival and bring a picnic lunch.

"We're hoping people will come out, enjoy the day, enjoy the music, create a sense of community and be educated about the positive aspects of solar power," Von Ruden said.

The festival begins at 10 a.m. at Biddle Park along the road to Lopez lake. Tickets are $6 at the gate, and $5 in advance at Boo Boo Records stores, The Earthling Bookstore, Big Music, Baywood Video, and Baywood Video Plus. Kids are free.

Moment of Truth strives to break local scene

By D.J. Taylor
Daily Contributing Writer

If you've been paying attention, you've noticed that over the last year or so San Luis Obispo has developed a music scene again.

Punctuated by the closure of the Mecca-like Loco Ranchero, it seemed salvation was far out of reach but some people got fed up and decided to take some initiative.

Cal Poly's ever-redeeming KCPR has always been one to promote new and different music. And Boo Boo Record's took a giant step this year by adding live music in the store on a regular basis.

And with a twist of an arm, local establishments like SLO Brewing Company and Brubeck's "The Cellar" have become increasingly supportive of the reincarnation.

It had come to my attention that there existed a band taking a different approach to the usual local music scene, and for once I didn't know these guys.

They aren't KCPR disc jockeys or record store employees. To my knowledge, they have only played one gig opening for Peter Will at the Sweet Springs Saloon in Los Osos and maybe a party or two. In fact, they're just your youthful everyday Joes, and they call themselves Moment of Truth.

The four quarters of Moment of Truth are drummer Russ Dennis, bassist Javier Cadena, guitarist Tyson Maulhardt and lyricist, vocalist, as well as leader Jeremy D'Ambrosio.

("Moment of Truth) is a reflection of society put into heavy grooves with flowing core lyrics for almost every one to hear and grab on to," D'Ambrosio said. "Most of the subjects are how we struggle with competition in life to strive for what we want."

But he said the band wasn't positive at first what sound they were striving for.

"We weren't sure what was going to happen," Cadena said. "We all just started jammin' together and things kinda just fell in place."

Cadena's bass sounds like 1980s hard core — at times sounding like a protege to Flea of The Red Hot Chili Peppers.

Maulhardt's guitar style stems a lot from death metal exposure, but isn't quite as relentless. It lends a sound with more

Director Stanley Kubrick's movie classics are still the best in cinematic history

By Valeska Bailey
Daily Staff Writer

A dangerous love triangle, a warehouse full of mannequins and obsession take the viewer in Stanley Kubrick's 1955 film "Killer's Kiss" through wild twists and turns.

Set in New York, a boxer, Davey Gordon (Jamie Smith), a working woman (Irene Kane) and her boss (Frank Silvera) end up in a wild chase for one another. Two men brutally fight until the end for one woman, and in turn, the woman desperately wants to escape from the unfulfilled world she lives in.

"Killer's Kiss" shows the director's talents for style and conceptual realization, as well as great storytelling devices, including a voice-over narration.

"Killer's Kiss" was the premier film of the Palm Theatre's film festival featuring Kubrick's work. Although it played last week, nine more films — including "The Shining" and "Clockwork Orange" — will play at the Palm Theatre in downtown San Luis Obispo this fall.

Co-sponsored by Cal Poly Arts and the Palm Theatre, the films will be shown on Thursday evenings at 7 p.m.

Although Kubrick has only directed 11 films in 40 years, he is considered one of the most important contemporary directors, according to Cal Poly English professor John Harrington.

"Kubrick's beginning films were his first efforts to break into the industry, even though the writing was not well constructed," Harrington said.

According to Harrington, Kubrick grew up in New York. He moved to England in the 1960s and has remained there since.

At age 16, Kubrick was a photographer for Look Magazine. As he worked with Look Magazine, he became interested in film. He enjoyed the film industry and decided to continue with it because he was not a strong student and could not get into a university, Harrington said.

"Personally he is one of my favorite writers," said Jim Dee, owner of the Palm Theatre "He has visually amazing films. When I saw 2001 it did something to me."

The series opened on Sept. 22 with two films, "The Killing" and "Killer's Kiss." The other films in the series are: Sept. 29, "Paths of Glory;" Oct. 6, "Spartacus;" Oct. 13, "Lolita;" Oct. 20, "Dr. Strangelove;" Oct. 27, "2001: A Space Odyssey;" Nov. 3, "A Clockwork Orange;" Nov. 10, "Barry Lyndon;" Nov. 17, "The Shining;" Dec. 1, "Full Metal Jacket."

A series ticket is $35 and can be bought in advance at the Cal Poly Theatre Ticket Office between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Single tickets will be available at the door for $5.

PHANTOM: Melodrama shows fresh ideas on opera

The chorus singer, Christine Daae, owes her improvement to what she believes to be her "angel of music," a voice that she hears while in her dressing room. The voice which has been coaching her, however, turns out to be the Phantom, who will stop at nothing to see the young Christine succeed, even to the point of murder.

Following "The Phantom of the Opera," was a music and comedy revue that transported audience members back to the 1960s. This vaudeville show incorporates everything from tap dancing to singing to a comedy routine about sixties rock groups patterned after Abbott and Costello's "Who's on First?"

The vaudeville produces a medley of the best in surf music: the Beach Boys, Annette, Frankie and of course, the "Itsy-bitsy, Teenie-Weenie, Yellow, Polkadot bikini." It also includes a comedy skit focusing on school, a stunning tap dance set to "The Rhythm of Life," and some folk music.

By far the funniest part of the show was a choreographed revue of 1960s television theme songs: The troupe performed songs from Star Trek, Mission: Impossible, Gilligan's Island, The Jetsons, Green Acres and Mr. Rogers. They dressed the part and sang the theme songs which produced a mountain of laughter from the audience.

It was nearly a full house last Thursday night, and audience members, both young and old, loved the show.

"I like the special effects," said 11-year-old Brandon Solomon, speaking about the sets used in the show.

Another audience member, Timothy Malone, had seen "The Phantom of the Opera" seven times at various locations and described the Melodrama's version as "brilliant."

The audience also liked the 1960s music revue following the play.

"The vaudeville was fabulous," said Mary Bunker of Santa Maria.

One thing that the audience responded to universally was the action and pace of the show.

"(The thing) I love about it is that they keep jolting you," said audience member Jennifer Brainard. "They keep you interested."

One such "jolt" during "The Phantom of the Opera" occurred when the Phantom appeared behind what looked like a solid wall. Other scenes were enhanced through the use of a fog machine.

One of the most amazing facts is that, according to director, Eric Hoit, the sets were constructed in only two days.

"We only had two weeks of rehearsals and two days for the technical part of the play," he said.

Aside from directing the play, Hoit also has a role in the play, something which he said was a little frustrating for him.

"I have a good time (acting), but (as a director), I like to be able to feel the audience response," Hoit said.

Hoit said his favorite type of work was choreography, and he did all of the choreography for the "1960s Flashback Revue." He also played several parts in it.

Meghan Shanaphy, who plays the part of Christine Daae, said Hoit was a great director.

"He's very good at communicating what he wants and what he wants from the actors," Shanaphy said.

Overall, both the play and the musical revue were exciting, fast-paced and entertaining. "The Phantom of the Opera" was suspenseful, and the "1960s Flashback Revue" was hilarious.

There are also several intermissions during which snacks may be purchased and served to you by the actors themselves.

"The Phantom of the Opera" and "1960s Flashback Revue" runs through Nov. 13. The show plays Wednesday and Thursday at 7 p.m., Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m. The Great American Melodrama is located on Hwy. 1 in Oceano. Tickets are $10.50 and $11.50 Fridays and Saturdays.

BAND: New faces in SLO music

feeling and expansion.

"I listen to a lot of Pantera and Sepultura and stuff like that," Maulhardt said. "It's cool, but sometimes too much the same as far as the guitars go. And we're a different band."

Russ Dennis' drumming is absolutely, as he admits, "all-over-the-place," which suits the band perfectly.

Maulhardt and Dennis, both 17-years-old, have been playing music together on and off for the last seven years, getting serious about it over the past few years.

Starting off their set, one might think Moment of Truth were understudies to Rage Against the Machine, especially in the manner by which D'Ambrosio delivers his brash lyrics.

"Zach (De La Rocha of Rage Against the Machine) gets in your face hard, singling people out," D'Ambrosio said. "I like to keep it directed, but more symbolic."

Despite their obvious likeness to Rage Against the Machine, they manage to maintain something of their own. There is the diversity of their playing styles. Because of this there are audible sounds reminiscent of groups like Prong, Kyuss, The Infectious Grooves, Pantera and countless other metal and heavy-handed hard core bands.

The band is also trying to exude a certain local feeling in their music.

"We're a local band made up of locals, and we want to deal with things and issues that affect us and the SLO scene," D'Ambrosio said. "Other bands have a style that might be about where they're from. We're gonna speak about where we're from."

The band has been playing together only for the last three to four months yet they have accomplished a lot. "We've been practicing for two hours or more at least five days a week," D'Ambrosio said.

"We think we've really got a cool thing going here, and we want to share this with someone. We don't want to just keep it to ourselves," D'Ambrosio said.

Band members do have their complaints though.

"It seems like everyone wants to concentrate on the bigger name bands," D'Ambrosio said. "That's fine, but when you've got something good where you're from, you'd think you would want to push that."

Currently the band has a demo in the works which will likely make people more aware of them.

"We heard a rumor that Green Day might come to town, and it would be totally cool if we could be an opening band for them," Cadena said.

For band information contact Jeremy D'Ambrosio at 543-7574.

Clinton and Yeltsin agree to accelerate nuclear weapon cut backs

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin pledged Wednesday to sharply accelerate the dismantling of thousands of nuclear weapons. The Russian president also promised not to sign new arms deals with Iran.

"We're succeeding in tackling some hard challenges," Clinton said at an East Room news conference with Yeltsin.

The Russian leader recited a lengthy list of foreign policy and economic subjects that he discussed with Clinton. He said they agreed, "practically, on every single one of these issues."

There were agreements on American investment in Russia, space collaboration, customs cooperation and joint efforts to combat crime. Deals were signed for up to $1 billion in ventures in Russia.

The United States and Russia agreed to speed up nuclear cut-backs under the START II agreement once it is ratified by both countries. Clinton said the move would shave several years from the timetable; Yeltsin said perhaps seven years or more.

"We will make the world safer for all of us," Clinton said.

The treaty calls for reducing long-range nuclear warheads to 3,000-3,500 on each side by 2003. There are doubts in Moscow that the Russian parliament would ratify START II because of the expense of dismantling missiles and the military's attachment to some of the weapons. American officials said they were confident of ratification.

The U.S. Senate has not approved the treaty either.

The war in Bosnia remained a point of dispute, with Yeltsin saying Russia firmly opposes lifting an arms embargo on the Muslim-led Bosnian government, as Clinton proposes. Both sides got some breathing room since the Muslims suggested a six-month delay on any action.

Yeltsin said, "In six months we'll take a look and see."

"We still have a potential difference on that issue," Clinton said. "There's no doubt about it."

"We've never fought the United States and I believe and I can say as president of Russia, that we will never fight the

Cops cleared of guilt in shooting of woman

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — No charges will be filed against two policemen who shot a woman nine times as she held a knife and her baby during a hospital rooftop confrontation, prosecutors said Wednesday.

There was insufficient evidence to prosecute Sgt. Michael Long and Officer Craig Liedahl on criminal charges, two Los Angeles County prosecutors wrote in a 37-page report.

Sonji Danise Taylor, 27, was killed on Dec. 16 on the roof of St. Vincent's Medical Center in Hollywood. Police said she was threatening her 3-year-old son with a butcher knife and yelling "For the love of Jesus!"

Long doused Taylor with pepper spray and she released her son, but then allegedly lunged at police with the knife. Long and Liedahl opened fire.

A total of nine bullets were fired, one of them striking her twice. A coroner's report found that seven of the 10 wounds were in her back.

The Police Department, district attorney's office and the FBI launched investigations but none resulted in charges or disciplinary action.

Nixed health reform causes worry for doctors, public

By Christopher Connell
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's 39 million uninsured aren't the only losers from the collapse of health reform. The high hopes that many physicians, hospitals and even insurance companies had placed in a major overhaul also have been dashed.

The American Medical Association had lobbied furiously for special protections to guarantee patients' right to choose their doctors and to prevent big insurance companies from arbitrarily cutting physicians out of their networks.

Small businesses dodged a bullet in helping to kill President Clinton's proposal to make all employers help pay their workers' premiums. They also lost a chance to join government-assisted purchasing pools to get a better price on the high premiums many small businesses now pay.

Even before the White House launched its crusade, teaching hospitals were worried that belt-tightening and the shift to managed care by big insurers and employers would cost them patients and revenues.

The academic health centers would have gotten billions of dollars each year in new, earmarked federal revenues under Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell's plan. The demise of reform leaves them back at square one.

The most obvious losers are the 15 percent of Americans with no health insurance and the millions more with inadequate coverage.

Some 81 million Americans are said to have pre-existing conditions that make getting or keeping insurance a constant worry.

While Congress had retreated weeks ago from Clinton's goal of guaranteed coverage for every American, all of the health bills had promised to curb abusive insurance company practices and make it easier for Americans to stay insured when they changed jobs or got ill.

Jack Faris, the National Federation of Independent Businesses' president, said the country was well rid of the employer mandate, but added, "We wanted market reforms because we know that many small-business owners are paying higher and higher premiums under the current system."

Also lost for now in the health reform debacle is any tax break for the self-employed on their insurance premiums. A 25 percent deduction expired at the end of 1993. All of the bills would have expanded it, some to 100 percent.

"We're as sad as anybody else to see the process come to this end," said Chip Kahn, the Health Insurance Association of America's executive vice president. Small- to medium-size insurers had no choice but to mount their opposition when the White House "turned off its hearing aid" to their concerns, Kahn said.

"We are still the insurer of last resort in most states, where we have to take all comers, as opposed to our competitors who have made cherry-picking an art form," said Alixe Glen, a Blue Cross Shield Association vice president. "Strictly from a business standpoint, we wanted to see insurance reform pass very, very much."

Some states had hoped that insurance reform would give them more flexibility to tax and regulate big companies whose self-insured health plans are now beyond their reach.

Major corporations had adamantly opposed any move to weaken the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act that exempts them from state health regulation.

Hospitals lobbied strenuously against efforts to pay for health reform by taking $120 million or more from Medicare over the next five years.

Now hospitals are faced with the threat that Congress will still look to cut Medicare next year but this time apply the savings to deficit reduction, not health needs, said Mike Bromberg, executive director of the Federation of American Health Systems.

"We're a lot better off without the Clinton bill, but worse off without reform," said Bromberg. Medicare savings next year may just "go into the big pit" for deficit reduction, he said.

Wealthy son risks inheritance to wed working-class fiancé

Associated Press

SANTA ANA — He came from one of Southern California's wealthiest families, and she was the seventh of nine children from a working-class suburb of Boston.

His mother opposed the match, threatening to disown him and leaving him with the prospect of losing an inheritance estimated at somewhere around $100 million.

Did love conquer all, or at least a whole lot?

"I always felt that people who didn't take a chance on something they believed in were losers," said Morton Smith, son of Orange County land heiress Joan Irvine Smith.

The 29-year-old securities broker settled in Huntington Beach with bride Marianne Campbell this week, and the couple talked with a reporter from the Los Angeles Times after their Canadian honeymoon.

"I did the right thing as far as my heart told me," Smith said.

Joan Irvine Smith, matron of a family that once owned most of Orange County, has given millions to UC-Irvine and recently opened her own museum displaying California impressionist paintings.

Each spring, she is host to the Oaks Classic, a charity equestrian competition at her San Juan Capistrano ranch. In 1993, the family was among Forbes' magazine's 400 richest.

Morton Smith and others have estimated his mother's fortune at about $500 million. Her attorney declined to comment on her will.

"I could not encourage this marriage," she said in a prepared statement. "And I fear that it may provide a continuing cause of estrangement of Morton from the rest of our family."

Mrs. Smith didn't attend the Sept. 16 wedding in Huntington Beach. Also absent were Morton's father, Morton Cappy Smith, and two half-brothers.

Marianne's parents, Antoinette and James Campbell, did attend, along with Morton's half-sister, Alletta Cooper.

"Marianne's a fine girl, she's well educated and she conducts herself very well," said James Campbell, a retired salesman from Wilmington, Mass. "I don't know what social class is, to tell you the truth. She has good morals, and she's a very good girl."

Morton and Marianne met 10 years ago at the University of Rhode Island, but they had dated for a while before she learned of his background.

Now a children's nurse at Long Beach Memorial Medical Center, the bride said her relationship with Morton's mother was rocky from the start.

The day after the two women met about seven years ago, Campbell said, Joan Irvine Smith took her on a chauffeured shopping spree to Rodeo Drive.

"She didn't like the way I dressed. She was determined to get me a whole new wardrobe," Campbell said. For years, there were beautiful gifts. Campbell was welcomed at Smith's ranch and the family farm in Middleburg, Va.

But there were also argu-

Deion twists his ankle during 49ers practice

SANTA CLARA — Cornerback Deion Sanders twisted his left ankle during the San Francisco 49ers' Wednesday practice, going down in a heap during a pass coverage drill.

Sanders, who returned an interception 74 yards for a touchdown in Sunday's 24-13 win over New Orleans, was taken off the field in a cart and began treatment for the injury.

"I've got a little lump in my stomach right now, or my throat or whatever. I can't overreact to it right now because I don't know how bad it is," San Francisco coach George Seifert said. "He went down. He was in pain, obviously. We'll just have to see how it develops."

Seifert it probably would take a day to determine the severity of the sprain.

"The type of injury is such that it just takes a day or an evening to go one way or the other. It'll either swell up or won't swell up," Seifert said.

The 49ers (3-1) host the Philadelphia Eagles (2-1) on Sunday. Sanders, a free agent who went to the Pro Bowl in three of five seasons at Atlanta, joined the 49ers on Sept. 15. He played in his first game as a 49ers three days later and made his first start for San Francisco against the Saints.

WEAPONS: Yeltsin says no more deals for Iran

United States in the future," Yeltsin said.

The two leaders were closing their two-day meeting at a dinner hosted by Yeltsin at the newly opened Russian Embassy.

Russia's arms sales to Iran have been a thorn in relations with Washington. A compromise struck at the summit would not interrupt the flow of weapons already in the pipeline, a senior administration official said.

Yeltsin announced there would be no more new arms deals. The administration said it did not know how many submarines and other armaments will be delivered to Tehran under existing contracts.

Yeltsin defended his assertion that Russia bears the chief peacekeeping responsibility over former Soviet states. "These are our neighbors," he said heatedly. "Yesterday we lived in the same house in the Soviet Union. There is no Soviet Union but these republics, states — they're our blood, right?"

Clinton agreed that Russia "plainly does have an interest, a significant interest, in what happens on its borders and what happens in countries on its borders."

Clinton said Russia should act under the framework of the United Nations "wherever possible and with respect for territorial integrity."

EMBEZZLEMENT: ASI employees tipped Public Safety to possible misappropriation of money after noticing discrepancies in this. This person was a very dear friend and (the investigation) was a shock to the employees of ASI," he said.

Public Safety first learned of a possible misappropriation of ASI funds in May when ASI employees tipped police after noticing discrepancies in the books.

Pierce had access to all of ASI's accounts, Mitchell said, but he added nothing was taken from student club accounts.

Documents relating to the case were allegedly retrieved at Pierce's home after a search warrant was served Sept. 2, Mitchell said.

Public Safety officials said they believe Pierce did not act alone.

A second search warrant was served at an undisclosed location on Sept. 15, Kennedy said. He added that the department is still searching for documents at that location.

According to a Public Safety report released Wednesday, the "scope and complexity of the methods used to acquire the funds indicated a high level of criminal sophistication."

Pierce allegedly carried out the embezzlement despite regular audits by outside accounting firms and ASI, the report stated.

Kennedy said Public Safety is requesting that Pierce be charged with grand theft from an employer, a felony.

"One of the things we are insisting upon is restitution. We want to try to recover the students' money."

"One of the things we are insisting upon is restitution," Kennedy said. "We want to try to recover the students' money."

Anyone with information regarding suspicious handling of money within ASI is urged to contact Investigator Mike Kennedy or Investigator Ray Barrett of Cal Poly Public Safety Services at 756-2281.

STORM: Wild, unusual weather struck San Luis Obispo County yesterday — causing delays, puddles and traffic mayhem

The CHP also had no reports of any slides.

On campus, problems were minimal during the morning hours. However, lightning struck a spot on campus shortly before 10 a.m.

"It would appear there was a lighting strike near North Perimeter Road by Ag Circle," said Director of Public Safety Joe Risser.

"There was a significant amount of electricity," Risser said. "And it messed up our alarm reporting system a little,

"I didn't expect the rain, but it's pretty cool. I have to figure out where all the halls go here to stay out of the rain."

but everything is OK."

The only precautions against lighting strikes were taken at the construction site for the new Performing Arts Center (PAC), Risser said.

"They're being very careful (with the lightning) at the PAC," said Risser. "I understand the crane is on the ground."

Though there were patches of standing water around campus, Public Safety had received no reports of flooding as of press time Wednesday.

Students had mixed reactions to the rain, although some were less amused by the challenges of staying dry.

"I didn't come to California for rain," said electrical engineer junior Eors Revesz. "If I wanted it to rain, I would have stayed in New York."

Speech communication freshman Anna Dachenhaus agreed.

"It's not a fun walk from the dorms when it's raining." A National Weather Service spokesman said the storm looked like a typical winter pattern, which is unusual for this time of year.

More than two inches of rain were reported on Cuesta Ridge. San Luis Airport reported 1.8 inches and areas of the Highway 41 fire received up to three inches, according to figures from the weather service.
